

Carmen King de Ramírez
University of Arizona

Carmen King de Ramírez, Ph.D., is an Assistant Professor of Spanish and Online Education Coordinator at the University of Arizona. Carmen has extensive curriculum development and teaching experience in World Language for Specific Purposes (WLSP) and online education. Her interest in WLSP stems from her work as a border community activist and professional interpreter. Her research interests include Spanish for the professions, Spanish in US communities, and intercultural communication. She has published several book chapters as well as scholarly articles in peer-refereed journals such as Hispania, Foreign Language Annals, Cuadernos ALDEEU, Heritage Language Journal, and International Journal of Intercultural Communication. Carmen is the co-editor (with Barbara Lafford) of the forthcoming volume, “Transferable Skills for the 21st Century: Preparing Students for the Workplace through World Languages for Specific Purposes.”

www.worldlanguages21.com

SABIO
BOOKS